As a child he wanted to be a cave explorer and in a sense he achieved that dream. In recent position he explores the depths of human existence and its needs.

Lucas loves Low carb brownies, but for breakfast he keeps it healthy and nourishing by eating Yogurt with fruits.

Lukas gained extensive multidisciplinary and cross-sectoral experience working in research, Start-ups, public and industry organizations during his career. He moved inventions and new technologies from the research lab to the marketplace. Lukas has also served as an external expert for the European Commission evaluating research and innovation projects. In his current role at tecnet, he helps scientists and startups to bridge the gap between research and business. His focus is linking innovation with purpose and values.
